July 2016

Dear Friends,

2015 was a momentous year for the immigrant rights movement and for Northwest Immigrant Rights Project. The year was full of dispiriting headlines: from political leaders who want to deport 11 million people from the United States to children and families fleeing violence. But thanks to the generosity of supporters like you, we have continued to make change happen and make a difference for immigrants in our communities.

In the past year, we have represented thousands of people from over 130 countries. Together, we have re-united families, protected individuals from violence in their homes and home countries, and given immigrants new opportunities to succeed.

With your support, we also continued to create systemic change. We challenged the injustice of children having to face a deportation hearing on their own without an attorney. We won class action victories that ensure detained immigrants with serious mental disabilities have an attorney to represent them. We responded to the President’s executive actions on immigration with an extensive community education effort.

Our supporters continue to be a source of inspiration for all of us: people like Shirley Nelson, who heard a story on NPR about our case seeking legal representation for all children facing deportation. Even though she was not familiar with Northwest Immigrant Rights Project, she looked us up, called us, and said “I want to be a part of this effort.” And so she is. We are all in this together because of our shared commitment to justice.

Thank you for your partnership in defending and advancing the rights of immigrants. We hope you enjoy reading about some of the victories your support has helped make possible this past year.

With Gratitude,

R. Omar Riojas  Jorge L. Barón
Board President  Executive Director

“Because of Northwest Immigrant Rights Project, we are both safe and finally able to enjoy lives that all kids deserve.”

Ronald Alvarado Garcia and Maikol Alvarado, Honduras

“I received my citizenship over 65 years after coming to the United States. After living my entire life in fear, I am free. I am so thankful for Northwest Immigrant Rights Project.”

Ivy Little, Canada

“When I found out I was going to get a green card, a huge weight was lifted off my shoulders. All my fears about being deported were over.”

Tina Dejkunchorn, Thailand
We Protected Immigrants from Violence in their Homes or Home Countries

We helped 1,785 clients who were survivors of violence, trafficking, sexual assault, and other serious crimes seeking safety.

We served 238 children and youth who had been abused, abandoned, or neglected.

We helped 2,038 people who fled violence or persecution in their home countries and sought asylum here in the United States.

“I had no idea there was an organization that would help me with my case even though I didn’t have any money. For the first time in my life, my fears have been calmed.”

Rafael Navarro Beltran, El Salvador
We Helped Keep Families Together

We served 3,324 individuals detained and separated from their family or community at the Northwest Detention Center in Tacoma by providing group legal orientation presentations, legal advice, or direct legal representation.

We reunited families separated across borders as we assisted with 708 family visa applications.

We represented 663 clients in immigration court facing deportation, helping to ensure that many of them were able to stay with their families.

We Provided New Opportunities in Work, Education, and Civic Engagement

We helped 443 community members applying for United States citizenship.

With the help of key partners including Perkins Coie, Microsoft, Amazon, and Garvey Schubert Barer, we led free DACA legal clinics in Seattle, Granger, and Wenatchee for 874 young people to help open new opportunities in work and education.

Lizbeth Sanchez and Tania Arce, sisters from Mexico and the featured speakers at the 2015 Annual Gala.

José (left) was born in Mexico but came to the US as a baby. He faced deportation, but is now able to stay with his family in Washington.
We Challenged and Changed Systems of Injustice

After working with partners on a five-year litigation, we won a landmark case, Franco v. Holder, which now requires the United States government to provide legal representation for detained immigrants with serious mental disabilities who are facing deportation.

We were honored to be the 2015 recipients of the ACLU of Washingon’s William O. Douglas Award for “outstanding and sustained contributions to the cause of civil liberties and freedom.”

We continued to work with partners on our nationally covered children’s case seeking to require the United States government to provide legal representation for all children facing deportation.

We Helped Individuals Learn Their Rights

We partnered with the State Attorney General’s office to launch a new project educating the community about the dangers of notario fraud.

We conducted over 50 community education events throughout the state including town-hall meetings, Immigration 101 trainings for service providers, and “Know Your Rights” presentations.

We collaborated with hundreds of pro bono attorneys, law students, interpreters, social workers, and interns who donated 27,669 hours of work over this year alone.
We Served Clients from 132 Countries

*In 2015, we received a one-time attorney fee following the conclusion of a five-year litigation case, Franco v. Holder, which secured the right to representation for detained immigrants with serious mental disabilities facing deportation. The award covers the costs NWIRP incurred during this important advocacy case. NWIRP will use this payment to continue offering services to clients in future years.
